Access Your Information

Access Your Information

Here is a list of your Facebook information that you can access at any time. We've categorized your information by type so you can easily find what you're looking for. Our Data Policy has more information about how we collect and use your information, how it's shared and how long we retain it. It also outlines your rights and how you can exercise them, and how we operate and transfer your information as part of our global services.

You can choose to download your information if you'd like a copy of it.

Download Your Information

You can download a copy of your Facebook information at any time. You can download all of it at once, or you can select only the types of information and date ranges you want. You can choose to receive your information in an HTML format that is easy to view, or a JSON format, which could allow another service to more easily import it.

Downloading your information is a password-protected process that only you will have access to. Once you've created a file, it will be available for download for a few days.

If you'd like to view your information without downloading it, you can Access Your Information at any time.
